

News Release

February 13, 2009

StarNet Wireless Makes VoIP More Accessible With Price Plans

Bay City, Michigan (February 13, 2009) – StarNet Wireless has announced new usage plans for its VoIP telephone service. These new plans will allow the customers to choose which features and the amount of usage they want to implement into their plans, rather than following a strict program that charges for features that are not wanted. “We feel that giving the customer the option to make their own choices regarding their telephone system is something that our customers will really appreciate”, says Dustin Jermalowicz, Business Development Manager for StarNet Wireless. “Nowadays there are so many different things we don’t have a say in, and it feels great to give our customers a say in a service they utilize on an everyday basis.”

Pricing for residential phone systems with 600 monthly minutes starts at just $22.95 and small business lines start at $38.95 with 1,000 minutes of usage.